Fathers, Dad, Grandpa
I bet you already knew Father’s Day is coming! All three names are titles of honor! Dads are special people that usually side with you. No matter how bad the child may be, Dad always finds a way to make it look or sound better. Mom’s not that way at all!

Dad always heads to the service during the Vietnam era. But when his first son, Martin, was born, his whole life changed and fatherhood was very becoming on him.

Oftentimes you hear, “You are just like your Dad,” or “That’s the kind of thing your grandpa would say.” Or “You had better watch your language; your father would have none of that.”

We, as children, want our own identity. We certainly don’t want to be like Grandpa, Dad or Uncle Perry. We have our own personality, one we have worked on for 16 to 18 years!

Now that I am a grown up. I’m glad I’m like him.

Grandpas are really children at their best. They don’t have to be good at everything. They will show you how to eat a large bowl of ice cream with a serving spoon, how to pitch the best ball and win the game. They listen with both ears (plus hearing aids) and always agree with you. They have learned in life they have two ears to hear and one mouth to say less. Grandpas are priceless!

If you know a Dad, a Father or a Grandpa, let them know you care. They all hold a valuable place in the heart of a child, a place full of encouragement, security, safety, and assurance that “everything is going to be alright!”

Fathers make the world go round with funny stories, cookouts, sleeping in a tent with the bathroom behind a tree, or using jumper cables (old school) to start a son’s car. One never knows what Dad, Father or Grandpa will do next. That’s the joy and love of Fatherhood!

Let there be light
Alex Houmes installs new bulbs in the Lorraine Theatre marquee Saturday afternoon. In all 3,000 incandescent bulbs will light up the marquee, which has been dark as renovations have been made to it. Houmes said the bulb supplier contacted him after the order was placed to make sure he, in fact, wanted 3,000 bulbs, not 30 or 300. Incandescent bulbs were used to maintain the nostalgia of it but LEDs will be used to replace the neon tubes in the beaming signage.
